

CARPET MILLS

Will Close Down For Two Weeks

The carpet mills, the local branch of the Bluebird Carpet Co., will begin Aug. 4, shut down for two weeks. There are alterations to be made in several rooms and it was thought a good season of the year to give the employees a vacation.

The employees were served with notice of the shut down last night. It was stated today that the shut down would be very acceptable to the employees.

In conversation with a representative of The Sun this forenoon, Agent Fairbanks said:

"The shut-down is for the benefit of the employees. We have been operating our plant continuously, year in and year out. All our operatives have been taking a vacation two, three and more at a time. They have suggested to us that it would be a popular move to shut down for a season so that all of the operatives could take in having a good time. The company has adopted the same policy at Clinton, our plant there will close on Aug. 4, and remain closed until Aug. 20."

The shut-down is not due to any scarcity of orders. It was the popular wish of the employees, and the company wanted to please them."

CASEY IS NAMED

May be John B. Moran's Running Mate

The Boston Post says:

The boom of Thomas W. Lawson for lieutenant-governor on the Moran ticket gave its last gasp yesterday, when a prominent Moran man remarked casually that Mayor James R. Casey of Lowell seemed to be the right sort of timber to accompany Mr. Moran through the campaign.

Mr. Casey is one of the most vigorous young democrats in the state, and his name has been mentioned in connection with the Moran campaign with much enthusiasm.

Of course the mention of the name of Mr. Casey is not quite in harmony with the suggestion of Mr. Moran that a fusion ticket would be a good thing, but it is pointed out by the Moran supporters that this was not laid down as a line of policy to be followed—that it was merely a possible way of doing things.

The Moran headquarters were opened yesterday in the Pemberton building, on the fourth floor, with ex-Mayor John P. Fenway in charge. There is a suite of rooms, with a reception room.

Mr. Moran is devoting his entire time to the special sessions of the grand jury, which is now considering the Fenway scandal, and will soon take up the legislative alleged bribery case.

ALD. HAYES EVASIVE

Dodge Made Charge Because Hayes Broke Away

TONIGHT'S HEARING

Alderman Hayes, who made the charge that he was approached by a representative of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. and offered $1000 to change his vote, will be called upon at a hearing tonight to prove the story. It is alleged tonight to prove the story. Whether the name of the man will be disclosed or not is difficult to say, for the alderman in question when seen by a representative of The Sun last night made every statement contradictory to the story, one of them being that he did not know whether he could give out the name, while at another time it would appear from his remarks that he did not know the man's name.

Alderman Hayes was a much sought after man by the local press and town newspapers yesterday afternoon, and several of the news papers made the statement that the alderman could not be found, a representative of The Sun spent about an hour with him at his home last evening.

Alderman Hayes was not at home when the writer arrived at his home, of Hayes avenue, but drove up in his carriage about 5:30 o'clock.

"What do you know about this matter and vote to sustain the mayor when you have been one of the loudest champions for the franchise for the independent company?" asked the writer.

"Well I found I was on the wrong side and decided to join the winners," answered Alderman Hayes.

At this point Mrs. Hayes interrupted her husband and said he had changed his opinion after the postal card call, and Alderman Hayes then made the statement that he decided the people did not want the double telephone system.

"Were you ever offered $1000 to change your vote?"

"No, you know who that man was?"

"I believe so."

"Will you state his name?"

"No."

"Will you be at the hearing tomorrow night (tonight)?"

"Yes."

"Will you state at that time the man's name?"

"I don't know whether I will or not."

Despite the tactics resorted to by the writer Alderman Hayes would not divulge the name of the alleged briber and showed every sign of being weary of the cross examination.

Prior to the arrival of the alderman Mrs. Hayes made the statement that she would be a witness for her husband if she was needed as she could substantiate the statement that a bribe had been offered. It is also understood that a child, her daughter, and another man were present at the time and heard the conversation.

Alderman Dodge, who made the charge that Alderman Hayes had been approached said he would never have made the charge against Hayes if the latter had entered out his part of the hearing to vote for the independent company and at the same time announce the attempt to bribe him.

Alderman Dodge said: "He promised me faithfully that he would stand up in the aldermanic chamber and made the statement that he had been offered money for his vote. He also said he would stand by the other aldermen and vote not to sustain the mayor. Imagine my surprise when he turned a complete non-responder on the first resolution. I thought at that time that he had made a mistake and voted 'Yes' instead of 'No,' but there was no chance for the second time. I then thought he would expose the matter but he didn't and I had to get up and do it."

Yesterday Alderman Dodge said he would bring the matter before the aldermanic chamber stating that he had reasons for not going to the district attorney, but last night the alderman and the lawyer advised him to go to the district attorney.

Shortly after nine o'clock Alderman Dodge telephoned to the district attorney's house in Ayer and made an appointment with him in Cambridge at 12:15 o'clock today.

THE REPUBLICAN CAUCUS

Little by little the happenings of the private caucuses at city hall have been leaking out, and according to a man who was present Alderman Hayes and Livingston came near coming to blows yesterday night. Words ran high and the epithets thrown back and forth were very plain and forcible.

The matter was smoothed over eventually and four of the aldermen went up to Dodge's camp, but Alderman Livingston refused to ride in the auto with Alderman Hayes.

Alderman Dodge made the statement that he would attend the hearing tonight but says he will not say anything. He does not believe in wasting breath, he says, at tonight's meeting as it will be nothing more or less than a noise. He says he is no quitter and he won't tell his story until he is brought before the grand jury.

Another city official, commenting upon the matter, said it would be a mighty good thing to bring on the grand jury and submit some of the charges current against certain officials.

LAWRENCE VIEW OF IT

Poor old Lowell has another sensation. This time it is an aldermanic hearing case. The strange part of the whole affair is that one of the aldermen declares solemnly that he refused to accept $1000 cash for his vote. And he lives in Lowell—Lawrence Sun.

COWLEY HEARING

At the opening of the Cowley hearing yesterday it looked as if the examination of Mr. Cowley would take until the middle of September, but when they got going it was concluded with the exception of the medical feature during the day and Miss Della Rother, Mr. Cowley's nurse and his sister, Miss Cowley were also on the witness stand. The hearing adjourned until Monday next.

ALD. HAYES EVASIVE

Dodge Made Charge Because Hayes Broke Away

TONIGHT'S HEARING

The special meeting of the board of aldermen called for tonight at eight o'clock, for the purpose of investigating the charges made by Alderman Dodge against Alderman Hayes, that the latter was offered a bribe of $1000 for his vote, will be presided over by Mayor James H. Casey.

Undoubtedly the attendance will be very large as the controversy over the telephone station together with the sensational statement made by Alderman Dodge, has caused quite a little excitement in the city.

There were various reports throughout the city today relative to the hearing.

Alderman Hayes says he will be on hand tonight, but it was current this morning that the alderman from across the river would not attend.

While Alderman Dodge calls the hearing a farce, Mayor Casey stated to a representative of The Sun that it was the only manner in which the public could be given any light. He said that if the matter is brought to the grand jury that the session would be private and the public would never learn what happened. While at the hearing tonight Alderman Dodge can make his statements and the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. will have the right to offer any statements they may see fit and the public will then be allowed to learn things which they never would if the matter was first brought to the grand jury.

The officials of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. will be present tonight and will be represented by counsel while Alderman Hayes will also be present, he stated to the writer last night, and he also will have counsel.

"Do you know who that man was?" "I believe so."

"Will you state his name?" "No."

"Will you be at the hearing tomorrow night tonight?" "Yes."

"Will you state at that time the man's name?" "I don't know whether I will or not."

Heads of the local press contacted by the writer, Alderman Hayes also would divulge the name of the alleged briber and showed every sign of being weary of the cross-examination.

Prior to the arrival of the alderman Mr. Hayes made the statement that he would be a witness for his time, but if he was needed as a witness and a subpoenaed witness that a bribe had been offered. It is also understood that she claims her daughter and another man was present at the time and heard the conversation.

Alderman Dodge made the charge that Alderman Hayes had been approached and he would never have made the charge against Hayes if the latter had carried out his part of the bargain to vote for the Independent company and at the same time announce the attempt to bribe him.

Alderman Dodge said: "The promised bribe, which he would stand up in the aldermanic chamber and made the statement that he had been offered money for his vote. He also said he would stand by the other aldermen and vote not to sustain the mayor, because of his surprise when he turned a complete somersault on the first position. I thought at that time that he had made a mistake and a word 'No' instead of 'Yes' but there was no mistake the second time. I then thought he would expose the matter, but he didn't and I had to get up and do it."

Yesterday Alderman Dodge said he would bring the matter before the grand jury and stating that he had reasons for not going to the district attorney, but last night the alderman got some advice from a local lawyer and the lawyer advised him to see District Attorney Sanderson.

Shortly after five o'clock Alderman Dodge telephoned to the writer at his home in Ayer and made an appointment with him in Cambridge at 12:15 o'clock today.

Little by little the happenings of the political campaign in Lowell have been building up, and according to a man who was present at the hearing, the hearing was a very plain and forcible matter.

Another official, commenting upon the matter, said it would be a mighty good thing to bring on the grand jury and submit some of the charges current against certain officials.

ANNA CRANE'S STORY.

"I have known Evelyn Nesbit ever since she went on the stage," she said. "I met that poor young woman when she was playing in 'The Wild Rose' company, and was living with her mother at Hotel Wellington. It was through Mrs. Nesbit and her daughter that I became acquainted with Harry Thaw.

"Before I go further in my story I want to say that in all the time I knew Florence I never heard her say but the kindest words of Mr. Thaw. The mother was deeply interested in her career, and was equally as much interested in her daughter. She was a kind hearted woman and Mrs. Nesbit had interested him in her children.

"Then Florence met Harry Thaw and her real troubles began.

"The first I knew of the troubles of Mrs. Nesbit and her daughter with Thaw was in the fall of 1904, when Mr. Thaw went to New York. He had received several communications from the mother, and that he wanted me to go to Paris and help straighten out matters.

AFRAID OF THAW.

"There was a slight delay in my getting away, and I did not get to New York until after mother and daughter had been separated by Thaw.

"The day before I got there a terrible row had taken place, and Mrs. Nesbit had been put out of the apartment by Thaw, who acted like a maniac. Mrs. Nesbit was nearly despondent, and but for the timely arrival of Mrs. J. J. V. Synnington, a newspaper writer, she could never have gotten back to the United States.

"Oh, do not leave me," begged Florence. "He will kill me, and I am deeply afraid."

"I mean Thaw, I stayed, and the incidents of the next ten days will never be forgotten by me while I live.

CLAIMED THAW BEAT HER.

"Harry Thaw is a monster, and any one who has lived the same house with him as I have will agree with me. I believe him to be a liar, and an old Florence when we finally got away from him and took a steamship for New York from England.

"The first thing that Florence did when we were alone was to bare her back and show me the bruises and discolorations inflicted by Thaw. His favorite place of striking was upon the back, which was violently covered with the marks of his violence. Her arms were also bruised and on several occasions while I was with the strange pair he tried to choke her, leaving marks of his fingers on her white throat.

"When I say that Harry Thaw beat Evelyn Nesbit I am only stating what my eyes saw. Twice when I intervened he turned upon me with his hands tal blows, and, notwithstanding my years, he struck me again and again. "All that happened in Paris and London was before Evelyn Nesbit began her suit.

"When we reached the city of New York Mr. Thaw's automobile was waiting for us and we went to the city office."

ANNA CRANE'S STORY.

"I have known Evelyn Nesbit ever since she went on the stage," she said. "I met that poor young woman when she was playing in 'The Wild Rose' company, and was living with her mother at Hotel Wellington. It was through Mrs. Nesbit and her daughter that I became acquainted with Harry Thaw.

"Before I go further in my story I want to say that in all the time I knew Florence I never heard her say but the kindest words of Mr. Thaw. The mother was deeply interested in her career, and was equally as much interested in her daughter. She was a kind hearted woman and Mrs. Nesbit had interested him in her children.

"Then Florence met Harry Thaw and her real troubles began.

"The first I knew of the troubles of Mrs. Nesbit and her daughter with Thaw was in the fall of 1904, when Mr. Thaw went to New York. He had received several communications from the mother, and that he wanted me to go to Paris and help straighten out matters.

AFRAID OF THAW.

"There was a slight delay in my getting away, and I did not get to New York until after mother and daughter had been separated by Thaw.

"The day before I got there a terrible row had taken place, and Mrs. Nesbit had been put out of the apartment by Thaw, who acted like a maniac. Mrs. Nesbit was nearly despondent, and but for the timely arrival of Mrs. J. J. V. Synnington, a newspaper writer, she could never have gotten back to the United States.

"Oh, do not leave me," begged Florence. "He will kill me, and I am deeply afraid."

"I mean Thaw, I stayed, and the incidents of the next ten days will never be forgotten by me while I live.

RUSSELL SAGE

Did Not Leave a Cent to Charity

FORTUNE GOES TO HIS WIFE

The Estate Amounts to $60,000,000

NEW YORK, July 25.—The World today says: Every dollar of Russell Sage's great fortune is left to Mrs. Sage by a will made in 1901, except an insignificant bequest made to Mrs. Fannie Chapin of Oneida, N. Y., an only sister, who died two years ago.

The will is to be read at the home of Mrs. Sage at 672 5th avenue, today and will be offered for probate immediately. The will undoubtedly will be confirmed by the court, and the fortune will be left to Mrs. Sage, who will charge that the fortune was made after a mental breakdown on the part of Mr. Sage, and that Mrs. Sage exerted undue influence over him in the distribution of his wealth.

Not one dollar of the fortune is left to charity.

The fortune of Mr. Sage, which was popularly believed to be $100,000,000, and even thought to be greater by the best informed financial men of Wall street, amounts to only about $60,000,000.

The 1901 will of Mr. Sage, according to a lawyer closely identified with Mr. Sage's interests, was drawn by Almon P. Goodwin of the firm of Goodwin, Vanderpool & Thompson. Mr. Goodwin died two years ago.

The will was personally sealed by Mr. Sage, and handed to Mr. Charles W. Osborne, his confidential secretary and cashier, and has been in Osborne's possession ever since. A copy of the will was retained by Mr. Goodwin for his office files.

The will made many years ago by Mr. Sage, which was generally believed to be still in existence, was fully described Tuesday last. That will, which Mr. Sage, third vice president, upon the requirements of the new law and was wanted to abide by the statute.

A PARDON

COLM McNEIL

BOSTON, July 25.—The executive council yesterday voted to pardon Colm McNeil of Boston, sentenced two years ago to a term of seven years in state prison for rape.

The case had been considered by the council previously, when the application for a pardon was denied. The friends of the petitioner have finally succeeded in convincing the council that the crime for which the prisoner should have been convicted was a minor one.

Yesterday's meeting, Lieut. Gov. Proctor, who has heretofore opposed the pardon, announced voluntarily to the members of the council that he was satisfied that his judgment had been in error and that McNeil should never have been convicted of the greater crime. The prisoner has a wife and several children, and previous to his arrest and conviction had borne a good reputation.

The contestants made an early start from Jacksonville and the first stop was at West Forks, 22 miles away. From there to the second control was a stretch of 28 miles, that landed the tourists in Birmingham. The third stop was at Skowhegan, and the fourth stop was the total mileage for the day 93.

The first cars began to land here about 1 p. m., and from that time until about 4 p. m. the machines came in rapidly.

The people here received the tourists with open arms, and when the visitors went to their hotels they found that they had left behind them persons who thought motorists were legitimate prey with bundles of money. So there was no lack registered at selecting Waterville for a place to spend the night.

DREW PISTOL

CRIPPLES ENGAGED IN FIERCE FIGHT.

ITHACA, N. Y., July 25.—A discussion among four cripples as to which was the most unfortunate, ended in a blood fight in St. John's hotel yesterday. Abram Spicer, who has one shrunken leg, entered the hotel with a cripple who had lost both legs. Within they came a one-armed man talking with Proprietor Dill, whose left arm was amputated. The one-armed guest started a discussion by saying that he was the most unfortunate man of the three and Spicer put forward the claims of his companion.

One drew a pistol, but before he could fire there was a general mix-up, in which Spicer received several long scalp wounds. Spicer has sworn out a warrant for Dill, who, he says, hit him with his own cane, charging assault. The other two cripples have disappeared.

BOAT SANK

WAS HIT BY A WHITEHEAD TORPEDO.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 25.—A whitehead torpedo fired from the deck of the torpedo station during practice yesterday struck and sank a boat in which four seamen were seated, watching the results of the practice. A life boat sent by the practice gunboat Vesuvius which was not far away rescued the seamen who were struggling in the water. The torpedo was not charged but it was driven by saltpetre force by contact with a break a hole in the boat at a distance of 300 yards. The men in the boat were stationed on the range line to pick up the spent torpedoes and by mischance they got in the way of it.

ACCUSES THAW

Woman Says He Beat Evelyn

WHITE WENT TO HER ASSISTANCE

Sent Anna Crane to Rescue Her

NEW YORK, July 26.—The most extraordinary story yet told in connection with the shooting of Stanford White by Harry K. Thaw is that Miss Anna Crane, a masseuse, sent by the slain architect to Paris in the summer of 1904 to bring Evelyn Nesbit back to this country with funds supplied by him. She has told her story to Assistant District Attorney Robert J. Turner, and his testimony will be most important if Thaw is placed on trial for his life.

Miss Crane is 50 years old, with gray hair and frank features. She was a masseuse long before that profession fell into the hands of the frivolous young women who today surround numbers among her customers such actresses as Margaret Anglin, Lillian Russell and Irene Bentley.

ANNA CRANE'S STORY.
"I have known Evelyn Nesbit ever since she went to the 'stage,'" she said. "I met that poor young woman when she was playing in 'The Wild Rose' company, and was living with her mother at Hotel Wellington. It was through Mrs. Nesbit and her daughter that I became acquainted with Stanford White."

"Before I go further in my recital I want to say that in all the time I knew Florence I never heard her say that the kindest words of Mr. White. The architect was deeply interested in her career, and was equally as much interested in her brother. He was a kind-hearted man and Mrs. Nesbit had interested him in her children."

"Then Florence met Harry Thaw and her real troubles began."
"The first I knew of the troubles of Mrs. Nesbit and her daughter with Thaw was in the fall of 1903, when Mr. White sent for me. He told me that he had received several communications from the mother, and that he wanted me to go to Paris and help straighten out matters."

AFRAID OF THAW.
"There was a slight delay in my getting away, and I did not get to the Nesbits until after mother and daughter had been separated by Thaw."
"The day before I got there a terrible row had taken place, and Mrs. Nesbit had been put in the apartment by Thaw, who acted like a maniac. Mrs. Nesbit was nearly destitute, and but for the timely arrival of Mrs. Ida Vera Symington, a newspaper writer, she would have been left back to the United States."

"Oh, do not leave me," begged Florence. "He will kill me, and I am dreadfully afraid."
"She meant Thaw. I stayed, and the incidents of the next ten days will never be forgotten by me while I live."

CLAIMED THAW BEAT HER.
"Harry Thaw is a monster, and any one who has lived in the same house with him as I have will agree with me. I believe him to be a lunatic, and so did Florence, when we finally got away from Paris and took a steamship for New York from England."

"The first thing that Florence did when we were alone was to bare her body and show me the bruises and discolorations inflicted, she claimed, by Thaw. His favorite place of striking was upon the back, which was simply covered with the marks of his violence. Her arms were also bruised, and on several occasions while I was with the strange pair he tried to choke her, leaving marks of his fingers on her white throat."

"When I saw that Harry Thaw beat Evelyn Nesbit I am only stating what my eyes saw. Twice when Evelyn feared he turned upon me with his brutal blows, and notwithstanding my efforts, he struck her again and again. "All that happened in Paris and London was before Evelyn Nesbit began her suit."

"Was there a suit started? Of course there was, and I will get to that later."
"Thaw finally consented to Florence's returning to the United States. "It was on the way across that Evelyn Nesbit made up her mind to begin action in the courts against Harry Thaw. She said that her mind was made up at the suit for breach of promise of marriage, and assault, although she was doubtful whether the latter charge could be sustained, as the offence was committed in France."

"When we reached the pier in New York Mr. White's automobile was waiting for us and we rode direct to his office."

$5300 Won On a $53 Bet

NEW YORK, July 26.—The surprise of the racing at Brighton beach yesterday was the victory in the first race of the 100-to-1 shot, Nigger Mike, trained, owned by J. J. Kenny. This colt has started a number of times this year, and has on nearly all occasions been quoted at 100 to 1.

Yesterday he was at one time 100 to 1, Crimmins had the mount. Sandy Hook and Nigger Mike ran head-on, head to the stretch, where the long shot drew away. He had finally to be hidden out to win by a head from Lad of London.

WANTED IN OHIO

The President Asked to Take Stump

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 26.

Senators and others who are in Washington with the president have been asked to take the stump for the president in Ohio this fall.

Every since Secretary Taft went to Ohio last fall and made a speech which contributed largely to the defeat of Cleveland and his party, the president has been asked to take the stump in Ohio this fall.

Some opponents of the president have been asking for several months to make a campaign out of this question, and now Roosevelt's name as the means of disrupting the campaign.

It is largely with the view of demonstrating to the people of Ohio that Roosevelt is in sympathy with the people of Ohio that the president has been asked to take the stump in Ohio this fall.

Secretary Shaw left Washington yesterday for the West, and will go to Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and other cities in the West. It is stated here that it is his purpose to visit the president in Ohio this fall.

On Friday last Lohrbach, the crack pitcher of the Memphis club, pitched a game of a double-header against Atlanta and won. Then Atlanta made six hits in the first game and five in the second. It took 10 innings to decide the first game.

According to a story from what is considered an authentic source, Harry K. Thaw is at the head of the National league at the close of the season and purchase the Boston club, Phillips, so the story goes, is to be succeeded as president of the league by James A. Hart, former president of the Chicago club.

George Hill has furnished a surprise by the capable manner in which he has covered the field for Washington in the absence of Charles Jones, says the Washington Times. This under-sized youngster has a habit of playing the game all the time for all he is worth and of never losing a game.

That John T. Brush and Manager John McGraw are willing to go to any lengths to strengthen the Giants is made plain by the fact that they have informed Edward J. Beahm, formerly of the Boston Nationals, that he can practically name his own terms.

The young man is resident to his father in the postoffice, and handles the mail.

The news of the letter left him and his mother in a state of excitement and Northampton. This letter was sent to him when she went to North pond. He remembers now that the letter was in the handwriting of Leon S. Phillips of Northampton.

This young man was in Northampton, and he was a student at the school. He was a student at the school. He was a student at the school.

Although the most diligent search has been made for the letter it cannot be found, nor does any member of the family know anything of its contents.

How's Your Hair?

Falls & Burkinshaw Announce That They Have at Last Secured a Cure for Hair Troubles.

We beg to announce to the people of Lowell that we have secured the agency for one of the greatest discoveries of recent years. We refer to the prescription of Sir Erasmus Wilson, M.D., England's most successful specialist in diseases of the scalp, who was knighted for his many successes in the treatment of skin and scalp. Upon the death of Dr. Wilson this prescription was secured by American chemists and is now offered to the public under the name Dr. Wilson's English Life to the Hair. This preparation will grow hair on bald heads, even after all else fails. Unlike other hair preparations it is not sticky or greasy, but gives life and glossy appearance to the hair. Miss Cora Stevens, 6 South avenue, Boston, Mass., writes: "Dr. Wilson's English Life to the Hair grew a magnificent head of hair for me after I was told that I was becoming hopelessly bald. My hair now reaches nearly to my waist and is heavy and glossy. I cannot too highly recommend it." If you are growing bald, troubled with eruptions, dandruff, or any scalp troubles, try Dr. Wilson's Life to the Hair. Albert Chemical Co., Boston, Mass., proprietors. Sold by Falls & Burkinshaw, 118 Middlesex street, Lowell, Mass. Price 50c.

NEW YORK, July 26.—The most extraordinary story yet told in connection with the shooting of Stanford White by Harry K. She has told her story to Assistant District Attorney Robert J. Tamm, and his testimony will be most important if Thaw is placed on trial for his life.

How's Your Hair?

Falls & Burkinshaw Announce That They Have at Last Secured a Cure for Hair Troubles.

We beg to announce to the people of Lowell that we have secured the agency for one of the greatest discoveries of recent years. We refer to the prescription of Sir Erasmus Wilson, M.D., of London, a most successful specialist in diseases of the scalp, who was knighted for his many successes in the treatment of skin and scalp. Upon the death of Dr. Wilson this prescription was secured by American chemists and is now offered to the public under the name Dr. Wilson's English Life to the Hair. This preparation will grow hair on bald heads, even after all else fails. Unlike other hair preparations it is not sticky or greasy, but gives a live and glossy appearance to the hair. Miss Cornelia Stevens, 6 Smith avenue, Boston, Mass., says: "Dr. Wilson's English Life to the Hair grew a magnificent head of hair for me after I was told that my hair was becoming hopelessly bald. My hair now reaches nearly to my waist and is heavy and glossy. I cannot too highly recommend it." If you are growing bald, troubled with eruptions, dandruff, or any scalp trouble, try Dr. Wilson's Life to the Hair. Allent Chemical Co., Boston, Mass., proprietors. Sold by Falls & Burkinshaw, 418 Middlesex street, Lowell, Mass. Price 10c.

THE HORSE SHOW

American Society's Most Sensible Fad

IN what is called the eastern circuit open air horse shows begin in the spring and last till late in the autumn. Then commences the indoor horse show season, the crowning event of which is the so-called metropolitan horse show at Madison Square Garden, New York city. The principal exhibition of the open air series is that at Long Branch, so successfully staged in our illustration. Eastern horse shows have for their chief aim the amusement of wealthy society people, the equine feature being merely the excuse for the display of horse and human millinery. To an unprejudiced, consider they are the same yesterday, today and forever, in the fashion of the clothes worn by the humans on exhibition. The change is plainly apparent in the dress of the women, less marked in that of the men.

The open air horse show people are more picturesque, though less gorgeous in costume than those who go on the parade at the Madison Square Garden performance. The relative importance of horse and dress in the public mind is plainly manifest in the space given to each in the newspapers. Columns are devoted to the names of society folk and their clothes, where half columns are bestowed on the horses.

Just what is what in feminine dress-making and hating for the reason to be gathered from the apparel of the horse show visitors. In the polo and indoor horse show season, the crowning event of which is the so-called metropolitan horse show at Madison Square Garden, New York city. The principal exhibition of the open air series is that at Long Branch, so successfully staged in our illustration. Eastern horse shows have for their chief aim the amusement of wealthy society people, the equine feature being merely the excuse for the display of horse and human millinery. To an unprejudiced, consider they are the same yesterday, today and forever, in the fashion of the clothes worn by the humans on exhibition. The change is plainly apparent in the dress of the women, less marked in that of the men.

The open air horse show people are more picturesque, though less gorgeous in costume than those who go on the parade at the Madison Square Garden performance. The relative importance of horse and dress in the public mind is plainly manifest in the space given to each in the newspapers. Columns are devoted to the names of society folk and their clothes, where half columns are bestowed on the horses.

But the feminine dressing? There the American woman is perfect. She has developed an ideal in clothes, ahead of an ideal in her own figure. The men are the typical horse show collection. Among them are old chaps, who have "followed the race" from boyhood, men with chin whiskers, thin, shrewd faces and keen eyes. There they stand, round shouldered, shambling, many of them, eyes fixed horseward, eating neither for the fine dresses of the women nor their own good looks, but only for horses—horses, too, that can run.

This picture of the finely caparisoned eastern open air horse show is perfect, the American flag, of course, draped and displayed abundantly. No kind of show in our land is complete without an American flag setting. Say, you can see the very torn scraps of paper where, according to our untidy American habit, we litter the fair face of this planet whenever we go.

Year after year in the eastern horse shows are the same equine types, showy carriage horses, with sumptuous vehicles and equipments, racing thoroughbreds and what New York city fondly names the "metropolitan saddle horse." It puts itself on the back with pride while it does so.

Now, what is the "metropolitan saddle horse?" It is not unknown that until a few years ago the south, Kentucky especially, was considered the home of the American saddle horse. This is a gaited animal that can pace, hop, canter, prance and cut various horse high jinks, being without able to travel a long distance with a man upon its back and being most easy and comfortable to ride besides. But now comes New York city and says that this is no sort of four footed beast for the Manhattaner. He must have something exclusive, something that shall be typically New Yorkish. So straightway New York sends across the sea and brings hither an Englishman to evolve for him a metropolitan saddle horse, the true American animal of the southern not being good enough for him. The Britisher at once begins and weeds out from eastern sales stables and from horse shows all specimens of the American saddle horses he can lay hands on and replaces them strictly with animals that can fill the John Bull horse bill, and there you have the "metropolitan saddle horse."

The southern gaited horse, with movement easy and gentle as the rocking of a cradle, has been replaced by a heavy boned, rough trotter warranted to bump the rider out of his boots, but perhaps that is the only way to jump up and down and make work properly the liver of the heavily dining New Yorker or Englishman. The so called "metropolitan saddle horse" has been got up for correct "style"—British style.

A leading difference between eastern horse shows and those of the middle belt and west is the absence from the eastern exhibitions of the great, splendid, nobly limbed and lunged draft horses, the kind Rosa Bonheur liked best to paint, really, perhaps, the most impressive of all. It is at the agricultural fairs of the rich middle belt of our country and in Canada that these noble draft horses are seen, perfect as any of the Frenchwomen's models.

But no section of the land can equal the east in the art of horse millinery, as it has been called. It is said that one noted New York woman whip, Clulla Morosini, has a separate costume and carriage for each pair of horses she drives, intended to be in harmony with the color of the steeds.

One of the most successful and enthusiastic exhibitors in the east is Mrs. John Gerken of the New York social set. Her country home is at Gravesend, on Long Island, and there Mrs. Gerken has seven large glass cases full of horse show ribbons. There are now

1,000 of these ribbons, red and blue. Last season alone Mrs. Gerken won about a hundred prizes with her saddle and harness horses. Newsboy, the famous winner, is owned and exhibited by her. Newsboy has taken more premiums than any other single horse since he started on the show circuit five years ago. He is a chestnut gelding 14.3 hands high.

Mrs. Gerken is a breeder as well as exhibitor of horses. She has sometimes as many as fifteen in the show ring during one season. Last year she was, with one exception, the leading individual ribbon winner of the eastern circuit.

Fashionable women ride to foxhounds unacceptably garbed and horrid in up to date style. Some even beset the cross saddle while riding in the country or hunting. But among all these fine ladies where is she who can rope a steer or round up a herd of cattle, as her western sister does every day and thinks nothing of it? There are even girls from the ranges who give exhibitions of "broncho busting" at western horse shows. That is a difference between eastern and western horse shows—the west can show real, daring horsemanship under trying and even dangerous circumstances.

One of these western horsewomen,

Miss Adele von Oht, was once driven by a herd of stampeding cattle over a steep bluff into a river and saved not only herself, but the crazy cattle, by swimming her pony down the ice cold river a mile to a ford, heading off the herd and driving it back to the range. These are the stories that stir the blood and cause one to see in a magnifying glass, at least for an instant, the littleness, yea, the contemptibleness, of mere clothes and fuss and feathers and mere high school riding, master methods and "stylishness." Bertha Kuiperink, one of the western girls who has subdued such famous bucking terrors as Dynamite and Carrie Nation exclaims with profound feeling:

"Our western cowboys are the finest riders in the world, because they never try to assume an attitude that is not easy and graceful. It is better to have the natural ease and grace of the plains rider than to follow the rules of riding teachers who insist on the side saddle for women and who pull up the knees of men riders till they look like monkeys on sticks."

Well, you take your choice. "But it's me for the wild west every time," says the sporting editor. So is it, too, with

CHARLOTTE VAN BECK.

The Woman Who Worried and the One Who Didn't

OF all unfortunate the woman who takes life seriously is the worst.

There is one here at the hotel. It is rather odd to find her here, by the way, because Larchmont is about the last spot on earth where one expects to find the serious minded.

This young woman is pretty and has a rich husband who adores her. Her jewels are worth a small fortune, and the other day as she stood in the doorway of my room pulling on her gloves preparatory to stepping into her carriage she certainly was a dream of prettiness and luxury.

She wore an imported gown of real lace made princess. It was lined with pale pink silk, and around her neck she wore, to carry out the color scheme, a dog collar of pink coral, and, gentle reader, if you have ever peeped into a pink coral you know what that means.

A pale pink chip hat crowned her autumn hair, and this was trimmed with three shades of pink feathers. In her hand she carried a hand embroidered pink chiffon parasol.

And yet her small eyebrows were puckered up, and she looked as if she were carrying the entire weight of the world on her shoulders.

When I first met her I used to think she was a dyspeptic. Now I know better. She is just a plain "worrier."

There are women of that description in all walks of life. They suffer for everything three times, in anticipation, in realization and in memory, and if they possibly can they make every one around them join in the worry also.

Quite Another Type.

My friend who takes life so seriously cannot understand the attitude—for instance, of this little stenographer downstairs in the office who sings over her work, even though she has only one shirt waist to her name, and that shirt waist is on her back.

Time. Serious minded would have plume waists, each more gorgeous than the other, and eight of them, at least, hanging immaculate and clean in her death at least three times a day, but as happy and healthy a baby as you would care to see.

And you don't hear Mrs. Bridget O'Shaughnessy bemoaning that the cares of motherhood are driving her into the grave. She would laugh until her sides ached if she could hear her employer talk. And it isn't that Bridget is stupid or callous either. It is simply that, in spite of her ignorance and poor advantages in life, she has

The hat illustrated is a charming French creation. It is of the finest Neapolitan braid in a lovely, glossy black. The undulating brim is faced with shirred black maling, and the crown trimming is a wreath of enormously large tea roses held together at the back with a drooping black velvet bow.

one sterling quality the other for all her wealth and education absolutely to enjoy bathing, yet there is one drawback—the ability to take life broadly and bravely as it comes to one bearing. It the way men do—and, alas, that I should have to say so, the way so many women don't!

But there? You might as well save your breath when you are trying to reform a worrying woman. She is born to mourn and to make others mourn as much as lies in her power.

The only thing to do is to refuse to join in the wall, and then she will postpone it, while she is with you at least. Although Larchmont is about one of white, and a hemstitched sailor tie, also of white taffeta.

Belleve me, the princess bathing suit is the very latest thing, and all other bathing costumes pale before it.

Another thing which is ultra smart is the colored lace veil. This comes in brown, in navy, in Alice blue and also in the latest tone, a pinkish tan.

It is no end smart and, thanks to the variety of shades, it is sure to be becoming to every woman.

One of the smartest color combinations I have seen was a yellow straw hat trimmed with white roses and loops of Alice blue ribbon.

Over this was draped artistically one of the pretty corn colored veils, with just the embroidered border hanging against the face.

I forgot to say that this was worn by a black haired girl with a clear pink and white complexion.

The combination was a great success. By the way, I think it is a great mistake more brunettes don't wear bright shades of blue instead of red. They are infinitely more becoming because softer.

Anyway, blue is ultra smart this year.

ETIQUETTE.

A maid should not make any unnecessary remarks when she is waiting at table, bringing in tea, etc. Perfect silence—unless speech is absolutely required—is one of the distinguishing marks of a well trained maid.

Never bang doors or wear creaking shoes. The latter can be cured by standing them for twelve hours on a plate on which enough castor oil has been poured to nearly cover the soles.

Servants, with the exception of the cook, are not expected to knock at sitting room doors. A cook always knocks at the door of the dining room when she goes to her mistress for orders every morning.

But a bedroom or dressing room should never be entered without first knocking at the door.

In answering the door open it to its full extent. To see a maid peeping round the corner of a half opened door gives one the impression that she is time to change an apron and wash one's hands, and if you keep yourself tidy this is all that will need to be done to make you presentable.

THE MAN TO SHUN.

The man who is loud and bombastic, who domineers over and crumbles at everything the servants do, who frightens the children and who struts about trying to impress every one with the fact that he is the master is not the man who makes a good husband, no matter how attentive he may seem before strangers. A husband should be a blessing to his wife and a pattern to his neighbors, and, though the perfect man may not exist, there is no reason why the perfect husband should be so rare.

Nothing makes a man so envious, nothing sets him off searching and longing for a home of his own so soon, as a glimpse into the daily happiness of some married couples. Nothing is more responsible for other marriages than the evident joy of those who still let love rule their life, for in spite of what he may look upon as blanks in the marriage lottery the prizes seem to him too overwhelmingly rich not to try for one.

SAVED THROUGH LOVE LETTERS.

A curious incident occurred in a street car in Berlin. A young man suddenly rose from his seat, drew a revolver and fired it, apparently through his heart.

The bullet, however, meeting some hard substance, glanced off, causing only a slight wound in the ribs.

The would be suicide was seized and taken to the police station. On being searched it was found that he had been saved by a packet of love letters in his pocket.

He stated that his fiancée had broken off their engagement, just returned him his letters and that life was no longer worth living.

is more than double the number fitted on the Cedric. Two electric passenger hoists are to be erected for conveying passengers between the six decks, also two elevators for luggage, and six smaller ones for mails, etc. There will be a telephone exchange on board, which will connect the chief passenger sections of the ship with the officers, and there are also to be special telephones from the bridge. But perhaps the most up to date novelty is the provision of electric curling tong heaters for the lady passengers.

GOWN OF GRAY CHIFFON.

Chiffon is making some of the smartest of afternoon toilets this summer. The dainty costume pictured is carried out in this material in the new tone called Agincourt. The skirt is laid in inverted box plaits to a short distance below the knees. At this point the chiffon is shirred in ruffled effect. The bodice is adorned with transverse tucks and bands of gray lace.
